

HASH HOLE
HARRIERS
HASH TRASH
SEPTEMBER 1997
Runs 1002 - 1005

1000th Reviewed

Well the 1000th run has now come and gone. The run from Devils Dyke on 18th August didn't exactly follow the original route as suspected, as no-one could remember what it was. No surprise there as I can never remember the run one week later, let alone 19 an'a-bit years.

Talking of which I was somewhat surprised to find that there is no history - at least judging by the response in the last trash there's been nothing worth remembering! Is this because everyone's memories fade in the following morning's hangovers? I hope so. Never mind, Phil's colour sheet was impressive to look at if bare on detail. If there is any interest at all in a hash history perhaps it would be better served by a separate booklet to the trash anyway so please do give me something to work with, otherwise it'll be limited to the last 5 years as I'm only a new boy.

Back to the run, the pack assembling at the top for pre-hash piccies was impressive with probably 80 runners making this our biggest ever turn-out. The run was marked with flour (thumbs-up) and shredded paper (thumbs very down - at least toilet paper dissolves in the rain!), and the early running was made by the current band of hash regulars until the massive on-back from the bottom of the cwm. A brief cut across the top of the dyke led into a long drop (official) to the bottom of the downs and a mountaineering finish up the funicular railway.

Loads of beer was duly distributed though sadly no down-downs. The disparaging remarks about the antics of other hashes in the sheet showed a rather unfortunate ignorance of the social purpose of the hash circle. Agreed that there is no place for beer wastage but there really is nothing quite like the circle for making newcomers and outsiders feel welcome and for uniting the regulars, and for an opportunity for a chat to everyone, to thank the hares, to warn sinners and make presentations etc. It's not necessary to have more than one or two down-downs each time so let's consider perhaps a monthly welcome circle.

Down at the Royal Oak we were rewarded with more beers, a barbeque and a chance for many to catch up with old friends whilst Phil carried on his distribution business from the back of his car in the car park. Glasses and t-shirts are still available but please be quick as there are limited supplies and we need to get the re-order in for t-shirts ASAP. All-in-all a pretty good time was had by all. My apologies to Wiggy for busting his nose during Bouncers bounce challenge and I am eternally grateful to him for not setting his wolf on me.

THE ALE-EMENTARY ALE TRAIL

Introduced by John H. Watson M.D.,
(Late of the Army Medical Department)

We were sitting in the lounge bar of one of Sussex's local hosteleries, during one of our baffling investigations, when Holmes proclaimed: "This is a truly magnificent pint of ale here, Watson!"

"I'm glad you like it, Holmes," I replied, before taking a mouthful of my own drink and then continuing: "I suppose that there are few establishments in the area selling such good ale as this."

"On the contrary, my dear Watson," he countered "there are plenty. Why, the local CAMRA branch have just produced a passport listing a selection of public houses in the area that sell good ale. And I intend to track down the best ale house for myself."

"What in the deuce is a passport? And what does it do?"

"Here, I'll show you." He replied, as he produced from his pocket a small booklet.

"You take your passport along to each public house listed. Purchase a pint of Real Ale or Cider and get one of the bar staff to rubber stamp one of the boxes on the centre pages."

"I notice that the 2nd South Downs Real Ale and Cider Festival is also included on the trail."

"Oh well observed, Watson. My brother, Mycroft, will be there, at the membership stall, and anyone producing a passport can get him to stamp it. That passport will then be entered into a free draw at the end of the trail to win a copy of the 1998 Good Beer Guide."

"What a splendid idea." I said.

"Once you have completed 20 pubs," Holmes continued, "you will receive a special Ale Trail T-shirt. If you have completed 30 pubs, you will receive an Ale Trail Sweat Shirt. And best of all, if you complete all 40 pubs, you can choose an Ale Trail Sweat Shirt and either an Ale Trail T-shirt or a unique inscribed glass. Oh and I strongly advise anyone not to drink and drive, as the local constabulary will enforce the law."

"I quite agree. This sounds absolutely fabulous. When do we start?"

Holmes took another sip from his pint, before replying.

"I deduce that the trail runs from the 1st June 1997 through to the 30th September 1997. The passports should be returned to be received by 14th October 1997."

"By Jove, Holmes! How on earth did you reach that conclusion?"

The Great Detective drank a mouthful of his beer, raised his pint in the air, smiling, as he replied: "Ale-ementary, my dear Watson."

HOW TO WIN AT WORDSMANSHIP

After years of hacking through etymological thickets, at last a sure-fire method for converting frustration into fulfilment – jargonwise. Euphemistically called the Systematic Buzz Phase Projector, the system employs a lexicon of 30 carefully chosen “buzzwords” :

Column 1	Column 2	Column 3
0. integrated	0. management	0. information
1. total	1. organizational	1. flexibility
2. systemized	2. monitored	2. capability
3. parallel	3. reciprocal	3. mobility
4. functional	4. digital	4. programming
5. responsive	5. logistical	5. concept
6. optional	6. transitional	6. time-phase
7. synchronized	7. incremental	7. projection
8. compatible	8. third-generation	8. hardware
9. balanced	9. policy	9. contingency

The procedure is simple. Think of any three-digit number, then select the corresponding buzzword from each column. For instance, number 257 produces "systemized logistical projection", a phrase then can be dropped into virtually any report or briefing with that ring of decisive authority. No one will have the foggiest idea of what you are talking about, but the important thing is that no-one is going to admit it!
